

Disagree in private with the AGREEMENT HOUSE™ COURT-ALTERNATIVE™

Your day in court, without having to go to the courthouse.™

Now you can have your own informal mini-trial before an experienced divorce arbitrator (who has often served as a judge pro tem) – in private, on your timetable.

You can resolve your case in weeks, not months.

With the pre-approval of a judge, the results are binding, just like in regular divorce court, but the proceedings are private and informal – it's fast and fair and you get "your day in court" without having to go to the courthouse.™

Here's how it works...

1. The attorneys meet with arbitrator John Zarzynski to discuss how the proceedings will be organized, what materials will be presented, if any expert witnesses will be called and other specifics, including the likely length of time needed. Thus, the proceedings are fit to your circumstances, not the other way around.

The sessions can be half-day or full-day, (or in special circumstances, multiple days).

2. When it's time for your case, you'll meet in a conference room, not a courthouse. We work to make it as comfortable as possible.

- ◆ You'll get your chance for your attorney to explain your case fully, in whatever fashion he or she prefers.
- ◆ You'll have your opportunity to be involved in the conversation. (Many clients are frustrated that in a courtroom setting they are mostly bystanders.) We can take breaks, as necessary. We can have side meetings as required.
- ◆ John will have the time and flexibility to explore new options/solutions with your lawyers and you.
- ◆ In other words, we will have the time and freedom to get to the facts and the best possible outcome.

3. Then, instead of waiting 60 days for a ruling, you'll have your decision within a week. John will write up his conclusions and submit them to the court and you're ready to step into your new future.
